

Factsheet – Getting married in Switzerland / Registered partnership in Switzerland

*Please note: an Apostille is required on all civil status certificates and court documents from the following countries of our consular district:
Cook Islands, Fiji, Samoa, American Samoa, Tonga, Niue.*

If you would like to get married / form a civil union in Switzerland you will need to go through a marriage preparation process.

The Civil Registrar in the city where the marriage is to take place must be contacted directly by the parties involved, well in advance, for information regarding requirements, dates, fees, witnesses and translation of documents.

If you are living in the Consular jurisdiction of this Embassy, it is mandatory that you present yourself in person at the Embassy of Switzerland in Wellington to hand in your documents. Please contact the Embassy in order to make an appointment.

If one of the fiancés is living in Switzerland, he or she will have to sign these documents at the civil registrar's office there.

The civil registry office in Switzerland in the town or city where the marriage / civil union is to take place is solely responsible for specifying and processing the required documents. It may require some additional documents not mentioned below. The arrangements to schedule the wedding / civil union date must be done directly with that office. Please note that English is not one of the official Swiss languages (German, French and Italian). The procedures may also vary from one canton (province) to another.

Some foreign documents may require prior legalizations from other Swiss representation and this procedure may also involve additional fees, expenses and time.

For deadlines please contact the civil registrar of the town where the marriage will take place directly.
